

Prosperity and Growth in 2025: A New Year Message from Jeffrey Sweeney, Chairman and CEO of US Capital Global

As we step into 2025, I see a prevailing sense of business optimism both globally and in the United States. I share this sentiment and attribute it to increasing economic policy certainty and renewed efforts towards global economic diplomacy.

Clarity in governance and policies, even amidst differing opinions, serves as a catalyst for increased economic activity. Moving beyond the disruptive influences of COVID-19 policies and the resulting uneven stimulus is ushering in an era of renewed growth and a positive outlook for the future. Building on this sentiment, US Capital Global is expanding its footprint in the Middle East, Europe, and Asia. We are actively exploring office opportunities in India, Bahrain, Hong Kong, Nepal, and Singapore, alongside expanding our presence in Germany.

Modern cities in the Middle East and Asia are experiencing rapid growth in mixed-use and transportation infrastructure construction finance, economically sustainable green energy project finance, and affordable housing. Meanwhile, other geopolitical shifts—such as the potential rapid lifting of sanctions on Russia—could quickly open new doors for international business.

As we look ahead, US Capital Global is exceptionally well-positioned to support this anticipated growth. With our strategically located offices, deep investor base, and intelligently designed investment products, we are ready to serve the diverse needs of our clients globally. We remain focused on delivering value across key verticals and are prepared to embrace the busy year ahead.

I want to take this moment to express my heartfelt gratitude to our clients, investors, partners, and team members worldwide. Together, we will continue to foster economic diplomacy, innovation, and prosperity in 2025.

This year promises to be one of shared global success, and we are excited to both help lead and actively participate in it.

Warm regards,
Jeffrey Sweeney
